

Choosing the right type of training method can be a daunting task, given the number of considerations, including budget, size and type of the workforce, location, time frame, and goals.

At Infopro Learning, we are committed to developing training delivery solutions that extend an organization to deliver transformational learning - quickly and cost-effectively.

Effective Training Delivery Methods for Your L&D Programs

01. Instructor-led Training (ILT)

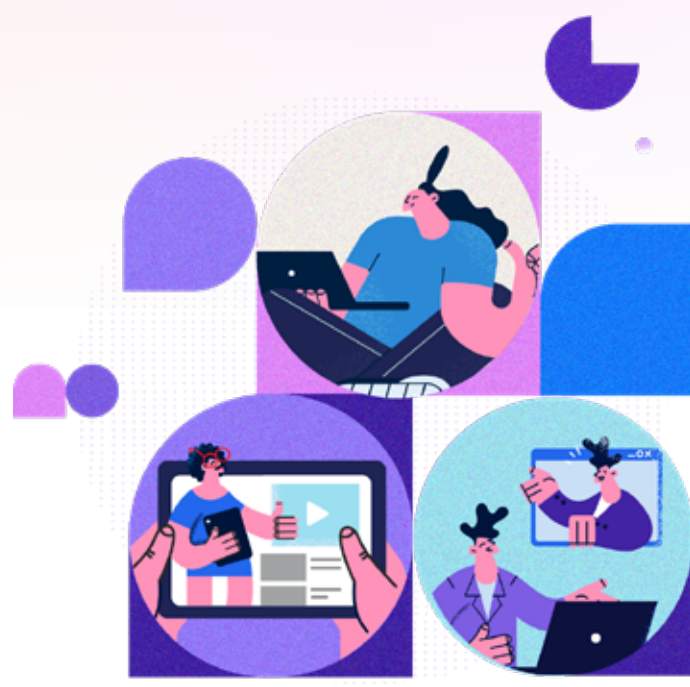

In a setting where training programs are going virtual, there is still a need for ILTs, either as stand-alone sessions or as part of a blended learning strategy.

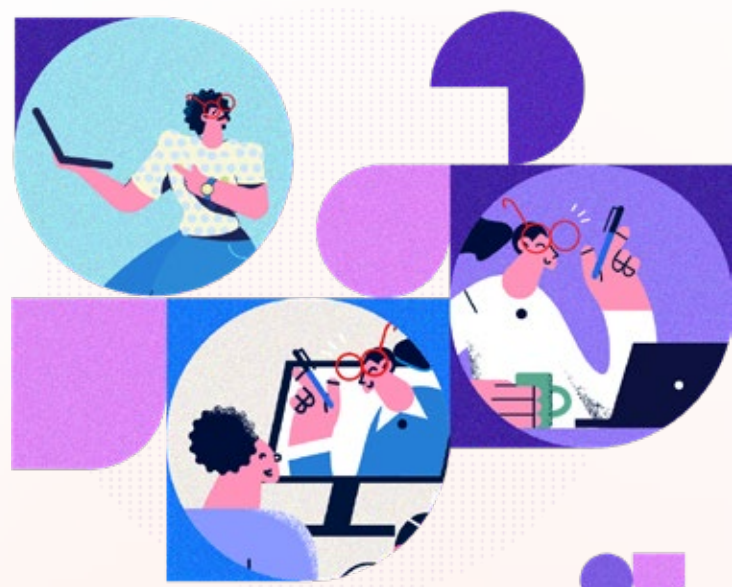

Example: polls, Q&As, role-plays, and breakout sessions.

02. Virtual Instructor-led Training (VILT)

A virtual classroom enables enterprises to give real-time training via text, video, and documents. Learners may access them from any location and device, saving time and money on logistics and venues.

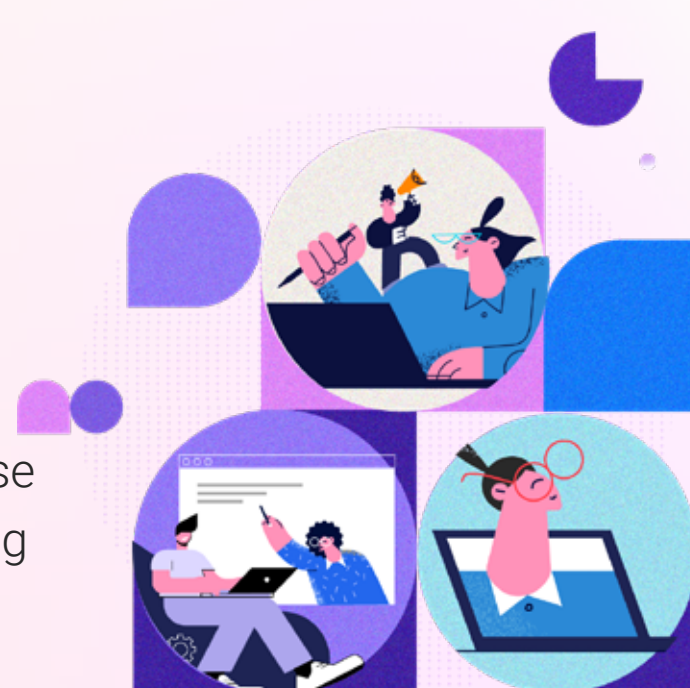

03. Blended Learning

Blended learning consists of in-person and online training. It facilitates learner engagement and delivers just-in-time support resources required to enhance knowledge application cost-effectively and unrestrictedly.

04. Train the Trainer

Train the trainer is about training potential instructors, facilitators, and subject matter experts. Master trainers lead these sessions to upskill an organization's in-house resources on training content, virtual training platforms, etc.

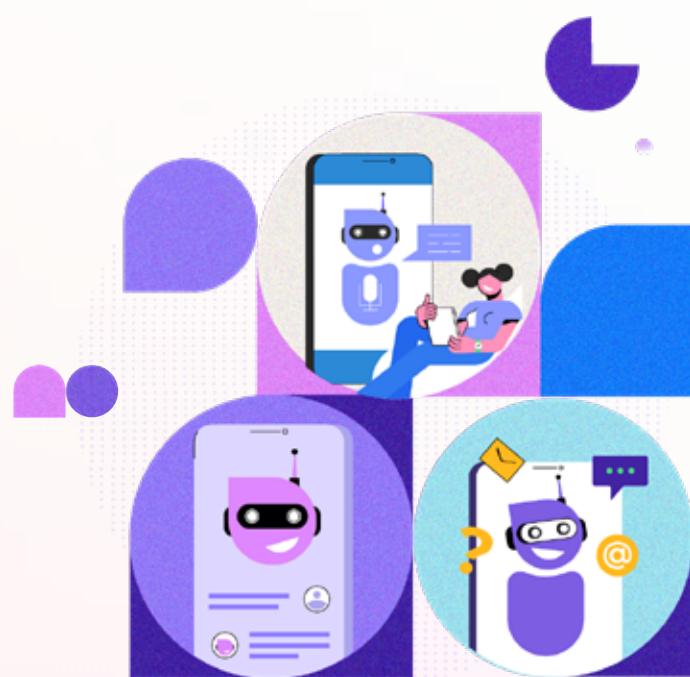

05. m-Learning

Mobile Learning or m-learning employs mobile, portable devices to deliver online training content to learners. Training is provided in smaller bytes and ensured to adjust appropriately to various screen sizes, which can be accessed from anywhere.

06. AI Chatbot

AI chatbot for employee learning and development fast-tracks employee productivity, builds organizational bench strength, and decreases the administration burden on L&D leaders. It personalizes learning and guides learners.

07. Mentoring and Coaching

Effective mentoring and coaching help organizational leaders align their team members toward the right business goals, values, culture, and overall strategy. These can be offered in both face-to-face as well as virtual formats.